ON LORE OF GARDENS

Speak

(By Staff Correspondent)

LANGHORNE, June 10.—One hundred and fifty women, representing garden clubs from all sections of Bucks County, and a few from Delaware County gathered in the glen of "Glen Grove Farm," near here, yesterday, heard suggestions as to what garden clubs can do for a community, listened to hints on raising of flowers for exhibition, and enjoyed a lecture on flower arrangement.

This pleasing affair in the open, at the estate of Mrs. Henry C. Parry, was the second annual gathering of the garden division and friends of the Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs.

The morning program was presented in the natural amphitheatre of the well-shaded glen, close by a sparkling brook; a picnic lunch was participated in at noon-time; and in the afternoon the party gathered in one of the spacious buildings of the estate to hear the second lecture.

Mrs. Parry, the hostess, who is likewise county chairman of gardens, welcomed the club-women, and presented Mrs. Charles Swan, Perkasio, president of the Bucks County Federation of Women's Clubs, Mrs. Robert Miller, Jr., and Mrs. Schuyler, garden chairman and conservation chairman of Delaware County Federation, respectively, were introduced.

The hostess announced that five new garden sections have been formed in Bucks County, and added that every woman's club in the county now has a garden chairman. Various club projects were mentioned briefly and members of said clubs invited to rise as their specific phase of work was recounted. Mrs. Parry also told that the county now has four trained flower show judges.

The morning speaker was W. Johnston, horticulture editor of the New York Herald Tribune. The dual topic of this speaker was "Things a garden club can do for a community," and "Hints on raising flowers for exhibition." "We are usually tempted to do the things we like rather than the things that are best for the community," he stated in opening his talk. A garden club was referred to as one of the best civic organizations. Hint for greater advancement included: fewer committees and more effective ones; concentration throughout the season on a few topics rather than a different subject at each meeting. The program committee is the most important one, Mr. Johnston told, inasmuch as this body charts the year's work. He showed the fullness of 12 or more meetings all with different subjects. "If such is the case club members will arrive at the end of the season with a smattering of this and that. . . Instead choose your subjects wisely, one, or two, or three, and go over them thoroughly. In this way you will accomplish something."

Park work was referred to as something worthwhile in the community which garden clubs might do. "A community without a park of some kind, or at least the start of a park, is a community to be pitied. There are so many things that can be done in a community to beautify it, and which can be done inexpensively. . . The trade can usually be counted upon to assist in the projects, also, as such things are to the trade's interests."

In reference to tree commissions in different localities Mr. Johnston gave it as his opinion that every member of a shade tree commission should be a person who is appreciative of trees.

"The garden clubs of America are important and vital factors in our growth," added the speaker, he then telling that "garden work and community beautification is a community job, and should have the interest and support of great numbers." Turning attention to those who love flowers and trees, but who are not affiliated with clubs of this nature the New Yorker informed there are 100 non-members interested in such work, for every member of garden clubs. "What are you going to do about it?" he inquired.

The need of a "driving force" behind the junior garden clubs in the country was brought up. "If we can ever put over the junior garden section idea, the next generation will be garden lovers naturally."

Flower shows were mentioned in brief, and the women were told that the "community show is valuable as a real community show. Think seriously on these matters when you hold such. Give all the people of the community a real chance, and the chance for such is not made possible when people from all nearby cities and towns are given opportunities to enter, it was added.

The garden center was mentioned as

HIGHWAY LINK SOON TO BE COMPLETED

Section from Roosevelt Boulevard to Janney Station
About Ready

TO BE OPENED SHORTLY

It is expected that the first link in the new super-highway from Roosevelt Boulevard to Janney Station, a distance of four and one-third miles, will soon be completed.

The new road, the first link in a high-speed line to Yardley, where a new bridge, which negotiations are underway for with New Jersey, will carry it over the Delaware River and relieve the crowded Lincoln Highway. The new stretch of concrete crosses the Lincoln Highway at Janney, a half mile east of the Neshaminy Creek. The road is carried over the creek by a giant viaduct. Millions of tons of dirt and rock have been hauled from the Oakford Hill to make the roadbed for the new road on the other side of the creek, where the land is low.

The new road overlooks the Lincoln Highway at this point by about 15 feet. When the next section of the road is started the new road will be carried over the Lincoln Highway and the New York Division of the Reading Railroad, passing between South Langhorne and Langhorne and on to Yardley.

The road will run almost straight to the Neshaminy Creek from City Line.

OTTAWA—(INS)—According to a report of the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics "the only wheat immediately available for the world markets is the balance of the southern hemisphere crops and the reserves held in Canada. To Canada, therefore, must fall a large percentage of world trade for the balance of the crop year or until the end of July."

HERE AND THERE IN BUCKS COUNTY TOWNS

Sellersville to Reopen Quarry
To Get Stone For Streets

PERKASIE VS. VENDORS

An abandoned municipal quarry at Sellersville will be reopened temporarily to supply 1,000 tons of stone for street improvements in the upper North Penn borough.

Borough Council has compared bids received from several quarries and has decided to use stone from the municipal quarry. Local labor will be hired and it is estimated that the borough will save $500. Church and High streets will be improved.

Councilman Wilhelm, of the water committee, informed council at its June meeting that the electric pump at the catch basin consumed current amounting to $155.90 which is five times the average consumption. He said there must be a leakage in a water main or stoppage in the pipe line. The matter will be investigated.

Council donated $55 to the Sellersville Playground Association. This amount was due the borough for sewer rent.

Secretary Witmer presented forms for the primary election to be held next fall. These must be filed by aspirants. Sellersville will elect a burgess, magistrate, four councilmen, one high constable, three registry assessors and six inspectors of elections.

Atkinson Post, American Legion, of Doylestown, will proceed at once with plans to erect a Legion home at the Bucks county seat.

The building project was approved at a special meeting of the post, this week.

Any difference that might have existed among several members of the post as to the Legion's stand on the new home, were ironed out, indicating there will be a 100 per cent support for the new home when the final plans are presented and the financing arranged. One opponent of the home proposition appeared on the floor of the meeting and made known his stand. He was praised for his frankness, but agreed that if the proposition could be financed, either privately or through a building and loan, he would be for it.

The entire proposition is limited to $4,000. It will mean that Atkinson post will have to produce approximately $50 a month for a period of one year, after which the cost will be cut in half, when $2,000 of the post's building and loan becomes payable. The $50 per month includes upkeep of the building. For ten years the post has been paying out approximately $37.50 per month in rent and building and loan.

By cutting its expenses, the Board of Education of Lower Makefield Township has reduced its school tax rate two mills for the coming year. The rate now is 12 mills and $5 per capita.

The board also announced the selection of a new supervising principal, Eldon J. Sauers, who comes highly recommended to Makefield. Sauers holds a master's degree from Columbia University and expects a doctor's degree from the same institution this year. He has taught school in Illinois and has been principal here.

One teacher in the lower grades has been released as a matter of economy. Two new teachers were elected to replace those not retained. There are 11 teachers in the schools.

The policy of selecting the new teachers, school officials said, is to engage those who have better qualifications.

RELIEF ALLOTMENT CUT $13,000 FOR COUNTY

Milk, Clothing and Shoes Are Eliminated Because of Fund Shortage

NEEDY SHOW DECREASE

There has been a considerable reduction in demands for relief in Bucks County, especially in the middle and upper sections. In lower Bucks county there are still 1185 of the 1744 on relief, with most of them in need of clothing. Upper Bucks has 299 families on relief, and middle Bucks 360.

However, the reduction in the number of families has not been nearly in proportion to the "cut" in the state appropriation which has exceeded one-third of what was paid in May.

In May 15 State appropriated $33,000 for relief in Bucks county. For June only $20,000 has been allocated, a decrease of $13,000. However, the Directors of the Poor, who are administering relief under the County Emergency Board, hope to be able to meet all needs for food.

Milk, clothes and clothing will not be provided as the State has provided no appropriation for these things. The milk supply will be discontinued today, although Bucks county has never gotten the quantity that was allotted. One explanation given concerning milk was that the price has been jumped from seven to nine cents per quart—when even at 7 cents a quart there was not money enough available to provide for all of the sick and the children who needed it.

Of great assistance in relieving the demand for food orders has been the work that has been given about 900 persons on the highways—added to which, of course, is the income to families on relief who have had representatives in the reforestation camps. Many of the men in the camps, in the first and second groups that left the county have been paid for the work they have done up to the first of the month. As this money comes through, the families are taken off the relief rolls.

Upper Bucks county has 20 young men in the camps, middle Bucks 33 young men and lower Bucks 120. It is not known whether there will be any more openings for the county, but there are many applicants. Some have been sent to fill vacancies left by runaways or men rejected because of physical disability.

It is said to be likely that food orders will be refused the young men who run away from the camps.

Altontown, June 10.—Judges Claude T. Reno, Republican, and Richard W. Lobst, Democrat, who were elected to Lehigh County bench in 1923, announced today that they would seek reelection together on a non-partisan Judiciary ticket in November.

HEAT WAVE MODIFIED

Cooling breezes and occasional thunder showers which settled over portions of Pennsylvania today, slightly modified the record-shattering heat wave which has taken a toll of at least 33 lives in the state and sent the mercury sizzling into the 90's.

Forecasts of "not so hot" and the possibility of the arrival of delayed rains in the eastern and western sections of the state brought cheer as the week ended.

Nearly a score of Pennsylvania deaths, attributable to the blistering sun were from heat prostration and heart attacks, brought on by the intense heat and humidity. Drownings added to the toll as thousands fled to the beaches for relief.

Pittsburgh and Philadelphia districts still divided the state's deaths while the middle section of the state remained devoid of fatalities.

In the Philadelphia district, seven persons succumbed to the heat yesterday, bringing the eastern section toll to eleven.

Pittsburgh and vicinity had double that number as two more drownings and 9 fatalities were reported, bringing the district total to 22.

WANT LAWS TIGHTENED

Washington, D. C., June 10.—Congressional demands for legislation to block all loop holes in the Federal tax laws through which multi-millionaires and huge corporations escape just taxation, swept Capitol Hill today in the wake of the three-week inquiry into the financial affairs of J. P. Morgan & Company.

A legislative remedy must wait until next Fall, although the Department of Justice was conducting an immediate investigation to determine whether the Internal Revenue Bureau performed its duties in recent years. This separate investigation of one government bureau by another was prompted by evidence that government income tax officials generally stamped Morgan's reports "okay" without subjecting them to the usual field investigation.

DELEGATES GATHER FOR CONFERENCE

London, England, June 10.—Assembling for the opening of the World Economic Conference on Monday, the players in what promises to be the world's greatest poker game, poured into London today, each carefully concealing his cards.

From all quarters of the globe they came but each delegation carefully withheld his hand until he could glimpse the cards held by the others.

It would be inaccurate to say on the eve of the conference, that any delegation is showing any great optimism over the chances for its success. The Americans are hopeful, rather than optimistic, largely because everybody is looking for concessions from the other fellow, but is exceedingly chary of making any concessions.

Andalusia Fourth Grade Has Highest Attendance in Twp.

ANDALUSIA, June 10.—Fourth grade, Andalusia school, has highest percentage of attendance in Bensalem Township or 98%.

Pupils having perfect attendance for the term are: Jean A. Mudie, Clara V. Davis, Gloria A. Freas, Zola M. Laster, Pauline R. Fries, Wilson Stackhouse, F. Neil Julliff, Edward G. Katzmar, Jr., Joseph Kish, Jr.

Wilson Stackhouse and Pauline R. Fries, fourth grade pupils at Andalusia public school, have received the prizes offered by the Andalusia Parent-Teacher Association to the pupils having the highest average in each grade of the local school. Each of these two had 88 per cent for final average for the term.

BRISTOL SUBURBAN LEAGUE

Last Night's Result

WHITE ELEPHANTS 15, CUBANS 11

The Cubans were handed a surprise in the Bristol Suburban League last night when they lost a slugging match to the White Elephants with the final score being 15-11.

It was the second defeat of the season for the colored boys who still maintain the lead of the circuit.

John Bragg, the usual steady pitcher for the Cubans, was driven from the mound in the third inning when the Elephants pushed across nine tallies.

Hughes led the hitters of the fray, getting four hits in four trips to the platter.

Eighteen Finish Work At The Edgewood Junior High

EDGEWOOD, June 10.—From the Edgewood Junior High School, last evening, 18 students graduated, when annual commencement exercises took place at the Makefield school auditorium.

Dr. Guy Morse Bingham, a nationally-known lecturer, spoke on "Playing the Game." The school orchestra, directed by Albert T. Stretch, gave selections. An oration "A Century of Progress," was given by William McNabb; and Elsie McClister told of "Worthy Citizenship."

There were two class songs, "Sister Months," and "The Mariners," and the class prophecy was predicted by Eleanor Kellet; Althea Spangler told of the class history; while Alice Kish revealed "Who's Who at Edgewood."

Diplomas were awarded by supervising principal C. A. Weisel.

The honor students of the class are Gordon Bamford, Eleanor Kellet, Alice Kish, Elsie McClister, William McNabb, Hervey Moore, Jr., and Althea Spangler. The other graduates are Walter Crammer, Norman Cloud, Alice Daughton, Milton Delaney, Drew Dickinson, Charles Johnson, James Fleming, Douglass Pew, James Ronald, Kendall Rowe, and Garfield Tomlinson.

COUNTY FIRE LOSS DURING PAST YEAR REACHED $492,500

DEATHS TOTALLED SIX

Officers Re-elected at Chalfont
Convention; Picnic
Today

CHALFONT, June 10.—A fire loss of $492,500, with six deaths by fire, were shown in the annual report of Bucks County's fire marshal, William L. Stackhouse, submitted at the annual meeting of Bucks County Firemen's Association, which was held in connection with the county convention here last evening.

The loss diminished from the previous year, the figures submitted one year ago being $639,400.

The report of the fire marshal also showed that 294 alarms were received by fire companies throughout the county. Insurance on property and contents destroyed was placed at $401,000. Property in danger was valued at $150,000.

Included in the buildings lost during the past 12 months were: 17 dwellings; 57 barns; 19 small structures. Of the 57 barns destroyed, 10 were struck by lightning.

The largest fire during the past year was at the farm of Charles Miller, Gardenville, where 59 cows were lost in a $21,000 conflagration.

The Firemen's Association, calling its meeting in the school house here, was honored in having as a guest the Rev. Oscar Myer, of Newton, N. J., who was instrumental in forming the Bucks County organization 20 years ago.

Another message was given by Mayor Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville.

All officers were re-elected by the 250 men attending, these being: President, James E. Groome, Yardley; vice-presidents, Thomas B. Stockham, Morrisville, and Lloyd Crouthamel, Dublin; recording secretary, Clinton Reiff, Silverdale; financial secretary, W. C. Stauffer, Sellersville; treasurer, L. C. Leedom, Yardley; fire marshal, William L. Stackhouse, Hulmeville.

Additional plans were made last evening for the picnic of the county firemen in Forest Park, here, today.

The members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the several companies, gathered in another room of the school house to conduct their session. The firemen were invited by their co-workers from Newtown to hold the 1934 convention in that borough. Newtown will next year observe the 250th anniversary of the founding of that borough by William Penn. One of the several days of celebration will be turned over to the county firemen, which group plans also for a parade.

In two months the county association will conduct another meeting at Trevoze.

Anthony Carnvale Is Awarded A Degree

Anthony Carnvale, of 922 Pond street, received a degree at the commencement exercises of the Carnegie Institute of Technology held this morning in Syria Mosque, Phila. Commencement address was given by Dr. John C. Merriam, noted paleontologist and president of the Carnegie Institution in Washington, D. C.

Carnvale was awarded the degree of Bachelor of Science in physics by the College of Engineering. He is a member of Tau Beta Pi, honorary fraternity in engineering, membership in which is the highest honor awarded a student engineer, and a member of Alpha Phi Delta, social fraternity. For the past year he has been assignment editor on the staff of the Tartan, student weekly newspaper.

St. Ann's Guild Booked To Present Play Here

Tomorrow and Monday at 8.15 p. m. in St. Ann's auditorium, St. Ann's Guild will present the amusing comedy, "Take My Tip," under the direction of Messrs. Dennis Roche and William Gallagher.

The story starts in August, 1929, two months before the market crash, when the motto was "Buy good stocks and you buy a partnership in America." Henry Merrill, of the local soap works, is so heavy an investor in an oil stock that he gets in on the ground floor and is made a 36th vice-president of the corporation. Being a generous fellow, he tells his friends of a good thing. Being humanly greedy, the friends jump at the chance to profit.

In the second act, after Henry's daughter has eloped, the friends are presenting Henry with a diamond-studded wrist watch, as token of their esteem, when news comes of the Wall Street upheaval and all are wiped out. But Henry has invented a machine for labeling soap, which he sells for a large price, and everything is all right again.

NEW TYPE OF TRAIN

More speed and greater comfort for passengers are to be tried by the Union Pacific railroad in an effort to win back some of the traffic it has lost to busses and airplanes.

Success of the effort would mean quick duplication by other lines.

A revolutionary type of train has been designed for the experiment. It will be of streamline construction and capable of a top speed of 110 miles an hour and a sustained speed of 90 miles. It will consist of three cars hinged together and all operated on four trucks. The construction material will be aluminum or lightweight stainless steel. The power will be a 600-horsepower internal combustion engine. The coaches will be sealed, but equipped with an air-conditioning system by which they can be cooled in summer and heated in winter.

The combination of speed and comfort will constitute a forceful appeal for increased patronage, provided there is no sacrifice of safety. But the high speed contemplated throws a questioning element into the plans.

The public and the competitive transportation system will await the experiment with considerable interest.

THANKLESS TASKS

A gentleman who served a term on the school board of a certain town, remarked that it was an extremely thankless task. No matter what they did in the effort to please the people, he said, they found half or more of the town against them, complaining and criticizing.

That is one reason why people who are well qualified to manage the affairs of a community, will often refuse to take such offices. They feel they can't be bothered with incessant criticism and unreasonable demands. Of course such officials must expect reasonable and constructive suggestions and criticisms. But faithful service should be given warm appreciation, and when such officials perform their duties well, they should be given hearty praise.

GIRL TRAMPS

The horde of young men and boys roaming about the country, hitch-hiking, stealing train rides, is said to include a good many girls dressed as boys. What can these little flappers be thinking of, to join this wandering crew? What dreary circumstances led them to forsake the safety of home for this life of peril and perhaps disgrace?

Slack, vicious, inattentive parents probably account for many of them. If the old folks will scrap and quarrel, they can't expect the young people to walk the straight and narrow path. But the independence of youth is an equal factor. It used to be considered that young people were able to go on their own at 21 years of age, but they claim that privilege five years earlier now.

Business is getting better in spite of the fact that Charlie Schwab says it is.

Another advantage in behaving yourself is that you seldom need ask the public to reverse judgment.

The trouble is that a man with the acquisitiveness of a Morgan can gain control of 90 per cent of a nation's wealth, but the clumps rebel and change the rules before he can annex the other 10 per cent.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES ARE ANNOUNCED FOR THE BRISTOL CHURCHES FOR SUNDAY AND THROUGHOUT THE COMING WEEK

Zion Lutheran Church

Zion Lutheran Church, Jefferson avenue and Wood street, Rev. P. R. Ronge, pastor:

First service, 8:30; Sunday School, 9:45; second service, 11 a. m., theme, "What Paul Knew," beginning a study in the Epistle to the Romans. Read Romans Chapter 1:1-10.

Evening worship, 7:45, annual Children's Day exercises. Program of music, pageant and recitations, "Building for God," by the main and primary departments. Luther League, 6:30 p. m. Junior League, Saturday, 3 p. m.

Bristol Presbyterian Church

There will be one service at Bristol Presbyterian Church, Sunday morning. The Church School and the church will combine service for Children's Day exercises, the service to begin at 10:30. An interesting program is being prepared by the younger departments of the school, beginners, primary and junior departments each having part.

At the evening service, 7:45, Hopkins Lodge members, I. O. O. F., will be guests of the church for their annual memorial service. Music for this service will include the anthem, "There Is a Land of Pure Delight" (Adams) by the choir; and organ selections, "Sacred March" (Stimpson) and "In Memoriam" (Page). The minister will preach on the subject, "The Naturalness of Religion" from the text, Acts 17:26-27, "He made of one blood every nation of men to dwell on all the face of the earth, having determined their appointed seasons, and the bounds of their habitations, that they should seek God; if haply they might feel after Him and find Him."

The Women's Missionary Society will hold its last meeting until Fall this Monday at the church at 8 p. m. Boy Scout Troop will meet Monday evening, and the Cub Pack Tuesday evening.

A portion of the program for Children's Day exercises follow. Primary Department: recitations, "We are His Lambs," Patricia Henry; "Blossom Band," Janet Chambers, Margaret Elder, Jane Brownlee, Gladys Kline, Hilma Stamp; recitation, Margaret Brownlee; "The Lord is Our Shepherd," Forrester Zarr, Robert Streep, Charles Bigelow, Robert Roper, Bert Nichols, Charles Peet; song by a group, "By Our Deeds," James Fry, Raymond Nichols, Donald Rubincam, Elwood Vanzant, Wayne Vorty, Edward Stetson; "Why So Bright?" Francis Thompson.

For the Beginner's Department: Song, "Birds' Gay"; "Greetings," Chester Streep; "The Call," Florence Downing; "Children's Day," Jance DeLong; "Working for Jesus," Norman Hetherington; "Good Morning," Charles and Paul Gosline; "The Junetide Hour," Lillian Brownlee; "Little Bits," James Hetherington; "Sweetest of All," Lois Worthington; "God Takes Care of You," Shirley Peet; "The Kind Shepherd," John B. Dettelson; "Children's Day," Henry Black; "Joy," Freddie Hibbs; "Jesus Loves Us"; "Happy and Gay," Joan Moyer; "Rocking the Flowers to Sleep," Katherine Johnson; "When Jesus was a Little Boy," John Bowen; "Little Rosebuds," Lydia, Milton and Alice Jones; "Flowers and Sunshine," Earl Vetter; "God Loves Me," Norman Vetter; "Our Day," Pauline Stetson; "On Each Golden Summer Day," Andrew Knowlton.

A part of the primary department program is as follows: "A True Story," Grace Downing, Patricia Rubincam, Grace Bigelow; "The Gift of Roses," Jane Lynch; song, "Forest Voices," Miss King's and Miss Bell's classes; "The Boy who Helped," Virginia Vetter.

Bristol M. E. Church

At the first service of the new conference year the minister of Bristol M. E. Church, the Rev. Clarence Howell, will preach on "The Rewards of Faithfulness." Mrs. William P. Betz, lay delegate, will give a brief report. Special music by the choir.

The Children's Day program, "The Golden Chord," will be rendered at the evening service, at 7:45. This is, perhaps, the finest program ever produced. In addition to the recitations, exercises, etc., to be given by the beginners, primary and junior departments, there will be rendered a beautiful and highly instructive pageant by about 50 young people. This pageant will stress the importance of Christian education. It will show that certain forces of the present day seek to prevent wholesome progress. It will be clearly seen that ignorance is a giant and a tyrant, that greed causes people to starve amidst plenty, and that the clamor of selfishness is un-Christian. Pageant will show that all of these forces can be and should be combated by Christian education.

Presbyterian Church of Our Saviour

Rev. Andrew G. Soila, Th. M., minister: morning worship, in Italian, 11 o'clock. There will be no Church School session in the afternoon, but it will take place in the evening, at eight o'clock, when the Children's Day exercises will take place. The speaker will be B. White. MARY LOU GOES SHOPPING

SHE is only eight, but, even at this tender age Mary Lou is a daily customer at the neighborhood stores. Perhaps it is a package of crackers, and a pound of coffee at the grocer's. Perhaps it is some tooth-paste or toilet soap at the drug store.

Of course Mary Lou doesn't decide on what she is going to buy. Her mother writes a list — this brand of crackers, this brand of coffee, this make of tooth-paste, this kind of soap. She knows the prices, and gives Mary Lou just enough money, with an extra penny or two, perhaps, to spend for herself.

Buying is just as simple and easy as that because of just one thing — Advertising.

Advertising has given all of us a lot to be thankful for.

Because of advertising, people in Texas know about and buy Michigan motor cars. People in New Hampshire buy oranges raised in Florida and California. Because of advertising, merchants and manufacturers are forced to improve their products. It has standardized quality. It has increased consumption and thereby lowered costs. It promotes competition and thereby keeps dealers and merchants wide awake to secure for you the most for your money.

But best of all it writes "Finis" on the business career of any merchant or manufacturer who attempts to fool the public or give them less than value received.

"STOLEN LOVE" by HAZEL LIVINGSTON

COPYRIGHT BY KINO FEATURES SYNDICATE, INC.

WHAT HAS HAPPENED SO FAR.

Lovely Joan Hastings lives a secluded life with her two stern, old aunts, Evvie and Babe Van Fleet, in Sauahito, California. She falls in love with Bill Martin, young mechanic. Learning this, Aunt Evvie sends Joan away to Pennsylvania to school. Enroute, Joan slips off the train and goes to Bill's home only to find that he left town without leaving an address. She did not know Bill had gone to see her and Evvie upbraided him, saying if he loved Joan he would give her up and not try to find her as he had nothing to offer her. Joan settles in San Francisco, unknown to her aunts. She boards with good-natured Mrs. Maisie Kummer and works in a department store. Bill, in the meantime, is befriended by Rollo Keyes, wealthy playboy. Rollo's father, believing Bill may have a good influence on his son, gives him a position where he learns surveying. He does not try to get in touch with Joan as he wants to be a success before he goes to her. Bill's mother returns Joan's letters to her as she does not know her son's address, but she assures Joan he is all right as he sends money regularly. Joan believes Bill no longer cares and is broken-hearted. Maisie tries in vain to make her forget.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

CHAPTER XIX

One night when she came home after work she found the table set with the lace tablecloth, and all the best silver that Maisie kept in little red hannel cases, under the mattress in the wall bed. Maisie herself was all in a flutter, frying squabs in the kitchen. She pointed to Joan's room with a long handed kitchen fork. "Fanny's in your room, resting. She just got back from New York—she's going to stay for dinner."

"Fanny?"

"My oldest daughter—you know—the one I said was a dressmaker and married a French aviator—de Gaulle, her name is—she calls it Francine de Guity. Don't you remember I said she owned that swell place on Sutter Street—Maison Francine? Well, she goes East all the time to look over the styles, and she just got back—just put the salad on the table, will you, dearie, and call her."

Madame de Guity—no one but Maisie could have thought of her as Fanny—had the most languid of smiles for Joan. She sank into her chair with a faint stir of pungent Oriental scent, from her rustle of simple black crepe gown. Her dark red hair was brushed severely back from her thin, blue-white face, her thin lips were scarlet, her cold gray eyes were shadowed with coal black, amazingly long lashes.

She couldn't be Maisie's daughter! Maisie was pathetically proud of her. She pressed delicacies upon her, she plied her with questions, and ran an inquiring finger through the dark red waves of her hair. "He done a good job. I hate that regular henna shade they get. But I do wish you'd get a little rouge on your cheeks, and put on a little jewelry. I like a little color myself. I wish you could have seen the color Joan had when she came—"

"When she came?" Madame de Guity smiled. "What did you do to her—run her digestion with your cooking?"

"Not I. She hasn't been very happy—little love affair, and that basement air—she works in the basement at McBride's—"

"Really?" Madame de Guity for all her aesthetic air was demolishing her squab, picking the bones with small, white teeth.

"But I don't work in the basement any more—I didn't tell you, did I?" Joan interrupted.

"No!" Maisie cried, pleased and disappointed at the same time. "You close-mouthed little thing!"

"I meant to—I just didn't!" Joan said contritely. She was suddenly ashamed. It had meant so little to her, she had really forgotten that Maisie would be pleased.

Maisie understood. She reached over, and pressed the girl's cold hand in her warm one. "Never mind—tell us now," she said warmly.

"It was just last Saturday. They were having a fashion show and one of the models was ill, so they got me. I—I rather like it."

Francine de Guity was listening. She was looking at Joan, closely, critically, as one looks at a painting, or a piece of bronze. The languid air had slipped from her. Her eyes grew dark and snapping, like Maisie's.

"Walk into the front room and back, will you?"

Joan obeyed, self-consciously.

"That would do very nicely—for McBride's," she said, and pushed the skeleton of the squab away.

"It wouldn't go in my place. Finished—I must have everything finished—perfect—"

She leaned forward, and looked at Joan again. "Gee, Ma," she said at last, without a trace of the foreign accent Joan had found so puzzling in came with well-lined purses, and bought the wistful, wispy gowns that Joan modelled.

Up and down, up and down the soft gray carpet Joan walked, with the little, mincing, hesitating step that Francine taught her. Slender arms outstretched, to show the graceful line, narrow feet, high arched and twinkling, kicking back the long loose veil, as she turned and posed on the raised dais.

"You see," Francine would purr, "what I have done? The simplicity and the air... expensive?... Yes, madame, but if one will have beauty one must pay... see, the poetry of... and only once can your daughter have a real wedding gown and veil—"

They always weakened and bought.

Joan was the ideal dressmaker's bride. Her clear pallor, the wistful, far-away look in her sea-green eyes, the long loose mystery, and a certain, poignant, biting romance that Bill hadn't cared. He said that last night, "I can't leave you!" But he did—

Maisie's daughter. "Do you realize how that girl would look in my French jeune fille things? Sell! Listen, girlie—you go around to McBride's and tell them you're working for the Maison Francine—"

"There—I knew something nice would happen!" Maisie cried. "You see, dearie—"

Madame de Guity was still studying Joan through half-closed eyes. She waved a white hand, with shining, deep pink nails—

"The best, the best type. Refined. Spirituelle. Oh, my heavens—how young you are! I'll make a specialty of bridal gowns—wistful, young looking ones—all virginal with tulle—"

Joan stood up, her face flaming. "Please," she begged—"please don't—"

Once—was it really only last spring?—Joan dreamed of herself in a bridal gown, a shimmering silken thing, fragrant with orange blossoms, misty with tulle. She thought of herself, starry-eyed with happiness, looking up at Bill, and Aunt Babe and Aunt Evvie crackling in new black taffetas, with their best pearl brooches pinned on, and their company smiles, beaming from the dim family pew.

"Our niece, Joan Hastings, is marrying Mr. William Martin... yes, we're very proud—he's a big engineer now, you know!"

Dream figures crowding round her, tinkle of laughter, shower of rose petals—"Good bye! Good bye! Good luck!"—And her arm on Bill's—

Every girl's dream of herself as a bride. Precious as life, bright as stardust, sure as death—and for Joan, gone—gone so soon.

Now she walked in wedding finery, every day in Francine's shop. Shimmer of satin, shadow of lace, breath of orange blossoms—and her heart like lead in her side.

Never had Francine sold so many bridal gowns. Never was there such a bumper crop of Francine-outfitted brides. Fat girls and thin girls. Girls with eager, plain faces. Girls with bright, pretty faces. They no hard-boiled flapper could resist. They wanted to look like that or their wedding day—and so Joan's heartbreak brought Francine dollars.

If hearts break, Joan's broke when Bill's letter came back unclaimed. It was the end of hope, and the end of faith. She would have waited for ever—gone on loving and trusting always. And he had forgotten her—already. Forgotten to mention her name, to even send her a picture postcard when he wrote to his mother.

Bill was her God. To him she sacrificed everything. Home, future, love—everything—and wished she had more to give.

And he hadn't cared. When he was near he took the love she gave so prodigally, and loved her too, "I can't go!" he cried that last night, "I can't leave you!" But he did—and never even bothered to send for her letters, the poor little pile of them that had waited so long in his mother's kitchen, and were now turned into ashes in Maisie's garbage can.

That was what hurt the most—to know that it hadn't been real love—that it had all been for nothing. That all her life she would have to live with the bitter memory, not of a lost love, but just a sordid, cheap mistake. And she was only eighteen, and would have to go on living for years and years... remembering... modeling dresses...

Maisie, dear, blundering Maisie, wanted her to model for Francine, so she did. It pleased Maisie, and she didn't care what happened to her any more, there was nothing left to live for...

"Be nice to her," Francine urged, "I want all my girls to be happy together, and she doesn't mean to be ungrateful—it's just her way."

So—because Madame (they called Francine Madame) sponsored her, and she was supposed to be living with Madame's mother, "the girls" made a few friendly advances, but only Maud Murphy, the fat bleached blonde fitter, liked her—and Maud liked most everybody.

BLACK FROCKS WILL BE MOST CHIC FOR HOT WEATHER WEAR

By Alice Langeller
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS.—(INS)—Hot weather wear will mean hot stuff this summer, meaning, of course, that chic will be foremost no matter how hot Old Sol does shine.

For street-wear on a hot summer's day nothing could be nicer than the little suits now showing in the mid-season collections. These are printed foulards, dresses of charm and simplicity, with white collars and cuffs, often of organdie, and with them are worn loose jackets to match.

Oatmeal cloth is a good hot weather fabric and bolero suits come in a new criss-cross openwork design of black wool, with a cotton striped black, red and white blouse for the waist-coat.

A little black cape-coat in the new barrel line is very cool-looking worn over a white blouse with white gauntlet gloves and white hat.

Dead black frocks of chiffon, starched organdie and other semi-transparent stuffs are on top for hot afternoons. Transparent shoulder-capes of cotton or silk are cut with a kind of quaint simplicity.

Diaphanous mousselines in lovely plaids or prints are also chic for hot days.

DESIGNERS TURN TO PROSPERITY CLOTHES; FASTEN ELABORATELY

By Alice Langeller
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS.—(INS)—There are no more crisis clothes around the Paris dress-making salons.

Wear of creating frocks which fasten easily or can be slipped on over the head, they are bringing forth styles which have rows of tiny buttons and innumerable hooks down the center of the back. They really look simple, but they aren't if you go into their intricate design upon which depend their flattering lines.

with a new loopish effect over the shoulders ending in a sleeve-point at the elbow and continuing tightly to the wrist. The sleeve is removable at the elbow so the frock may be a short-sleeved affair as well.

Another prosperity dress consists of a lacquered black satin skirt ensemble boasting of two jackets, one of black and white with short puffs at the elbows, the other in red, black and white.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., June 9.—And still they come—these anecdotes about the Marx brothers' fictitious proteges, Canvassack Cohen.

Several days ago, the Paramount studio asked Zeppo Marx to get the brothers and the fighter together for publicity pictures.

Zeppo agreed. They suggested 11 o'clock the following morning.

"Okay," said Zeppo. "No, wait a minute. If he comes at 11, we'll have to feed him. Better make it 1 o'clock."

HOLLYWOOD PARADE.

Negotiations are going on with much secrecy, but a few people know that Connie Bennett is close to signing a contract with the new Twentieth Century Productions, which means Barryll Zannek and Joseph M. Schenck. Higher bids from another company may block the deal. But they'll have to be quick.

Just as soon as the studio gives the final word, Jean Harlow is leaving for the World's Fair. (She used to live in Chicago.) On her way home, the platinum-haired star will visit her grandmother in Kansas City. . . . Greta Garbo has joined the bicycle fad, but she makes no public appearances. Her pedaling is limited to the walks and paths of her estate. . . . Wonder why Billie Bakewell ducked out on his party at the Brown Derby the other midnight and went across the street to the Hollywood Place to long distance El Paso? And he talked for 30 minutes.

The funniest picture Fox ever made—they'll tell you—can't be shown in theaters. It's Winnie Sheehan's private reel pieced together from blow-ups (missed lines and impromptu comments) on the set.

Impatient to start on Dick Bart helmet's "Shanghai Orchid," Warners have persuaded the star to forego his European vacation. He'll be coming back here in about 10 days. And Ann Dvorak may play opposite.

Lupe Velez did not return. Johnny Weissmuller has a wire telling him to meet her at the station or she'll "kiss" him. . . . And Bill Gargan is studying singing, tap-dancing and typing. Says he: "No matter what happens in the picture business, I'm going to make a living."

FAIR PLAY

Wives deserve to be happy! A man is away all day—meeting friends, seeing new faces. His wife is more or less confined to the home. Her recreation comes in being able to chat with neighbors; in finding someone to join on shopping trips; in being able to say "How are you" to friends. All this the telephone gives her . . . and more. It helps her handle quickly and efficiently the varied duties of a busy household. Above all, it provides protection. And this means happiness!

Surely you can't afford to be without a telephone in your home. The cost is low . . . you can have one for less than 10 cents a day!

LANGHORNE VICTIMS OF "HIBS" IN LEAGUE TILT

LOWER BUCKS COUNTY LEAGUE

Last Night's Result
HIBERNIANS, 13; LANGHORNE, 6

The Hibernians and the Langhorne Colored Giants are making a see-saw affair of the leadership of the Lower Bucks County League. Last Monday, Langhorne was in first place. On Tuesday the Hibernians stepped into first place. Thursday night saw Langhorne take back the top-notch position while last night the Hibs defeated the colored team to regain first place.

The final score of last night's affair was 13-6, with the Hibernians counting twelve runs in the third inning. In this frame, Foster, lead-off hitter for the Hibs, went to bat three times.

The winners certainly laid down an avalanche of base blows, being credited with fifteen. "Fatty" Lyack was again one of the leading sticklers, getting three safe bingles. Leo Gleason also came through with three safe ones. Seven of the fifteen blows were for extra bases.

The Hibs introduced a new hurler to the local fans when "Lefty" Dean stroled to the mound. Dean set down the colored folks with four hits, one of which was a home run by Sellers. A few errors was the cause of Langhorne's scoring of several tallies.

"Skinny" Davis, hurling ace of the Langhorne team, was pounded hard by the Hibernian batters, although he lasted the full fray.

JEFFERSON A. C. LOSES TO A. O. H. BALL TEAM

BRISTOL TWILIGHT LEAGUE

Last Night's Result
A. O. H., 9; JEFFERSON, 5

The Hibernians, of the Bristol Twilight League, stepped to within one-half game from first place by registering a 9-5 triumph over the Jefferson A. C. on St. Ann's field.

The winners scored all their tallies in the third, fifth and sixth innings. They were not all earned runs as the Jefferson A. C. made errors both of commission and omission. In fact for the first five innings the winners had made but one clean hit off McCurry, the losers' moundsman.

"Johnny" Leyden staged his comeback debut with the Hibernian team by making four safe hits in four trips to the plate. All his hits were singles and came at the opportune moments. He drove in four runs and scored two himself.

The losers played fine ball afield. In the fourth, Bud Wright made a nice running catch of J. Roe's short fly and threw to first to double Gaffney. In the first inning a fast double-play, Tomlinson to Keating to Britton, stopped a Hibernian rally. Paul Keating handled nine chances without a flaw to be the leader on the defense.

Pupils Dismissed, Bathers Increase As Town Swelters

Bristol sweltered yesterday in a temperature which played tag with the 100 mark nearly all day. Pupils were dismissed early from some of the school buildings due to the excessive heat and all of the bathing beaches and swimming holes were filled to capacity.

The streets of the borough took on the aspect of those of a summer resort, as folks strolled along garbed in bathing costumes of various hues and styles. Several young girls ventured forth in shorts and strode about the streets in a nonchalant manner. Others wore the customary beach pajamas.

Then early this morning relief came as storm clouds appeared. Cool breezes blew away the heat waves and folks dropped off to sleep beneath covers. Storms visited distant points but not here.

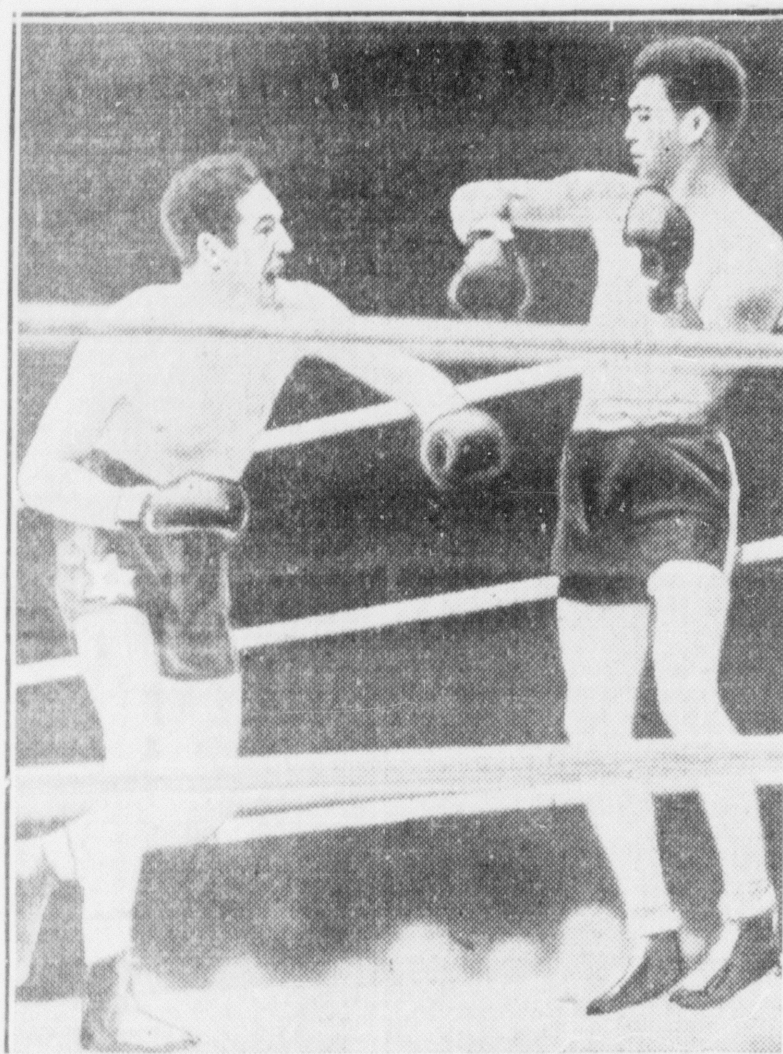

IMPROVEMENT SHOWN

Pittsburgh, June 10.—With increasing prices viewed as inevitable when the industrial recovery act becomes effective, Pennsylvania industries today ended another week of active business improvement. International News Service learned that unless a hitch develops, the boost will follow in the heels of the presidential signing of the industrial control bill.

The opinion is voiced in some circles that when the industrial recovery act is placed into effect, industrial circles will suffer from a reaction due to increases in prices which are expected to come with it. Leaders optimistically aver the set-back will be a temporary one, however.

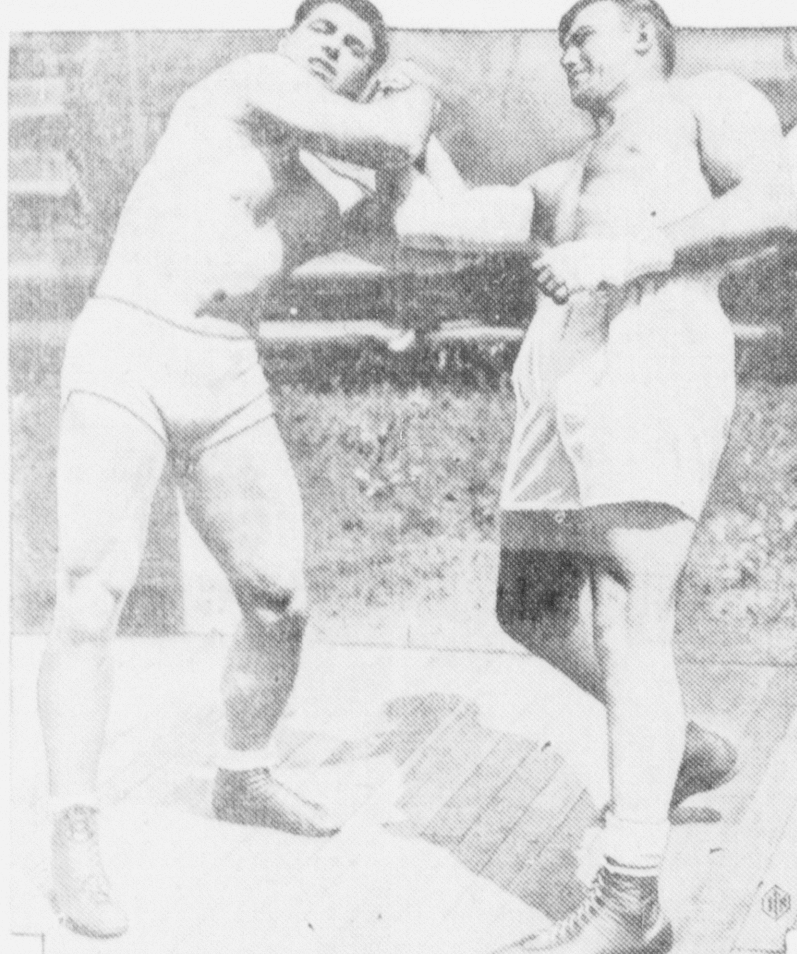

Production was ranging close to 50 per cent capacity both in Pennsylvania and over the nation.

Will Erect Two More Rooms For The Richboro School

RICHBORO, June 10.—A decision has been made to erect an addition to the schoolhouse here, to care for the large number of pupils which have been crowded into the structure during the past year.

Plans are now being made by Harry Parker, Southampton architect, for the two-room addition to the elementary building, which is expected to be completed in time for the opening of school, next September. The board will submit bids to contractors within the next week or so. The classrooms will have full-sized basements under them, with approved ventilation and lighting facilities, so that in case of necessity these may also be used as classrooms.

Raymond O. Gilbert, a member of the high school teaching staff for four years, has been elected as school principal, succeeding Willard C. Miller, as the result of the board's decision. Mr. Gilbert, a graduate of Susquehanna University and a post graduate of Ohio State University, is completing studies for his master's degree at the Columbia University Summer School this year.

With the exception of a new teacher to fill Mr. Gilbert's position on the high school faculty, the teaching staff for both the high and elementary schools will remain the same. The entire staff has accepted a ten per cent cut in their present salaries, in accord with the board's economy move.

cations in keeping with the policies and standards of the State Department. The board members also say that it is their aim to place the school system where it belongs by having modern schools with instructors who are trained in the educational methods of today.

Adoption of an ordinance placing restrictions upon vendors, particularly those who sell ice cream in the borough, tabling of a petition asking for the erection of a bridge, a discussion of the electric light rates and the consideration of the purchase of a coal pulverizer for the electric light plant were the four outstanding features at the meeting of Perkasio Borough Council.

Residents of the borough for some time have been registering complaint in reference to the ringing of bells and the tooting of horns by the vendors who visit the borough. A petition was presented to Borough Council recently by Hartzell-Crounthal post, American Legion, requesting that Council take some action in an attempt to put an end to this alleged nuisance.

Council passed an ordinance which will prohibit vendors from operating in the borough on Sundays. It also prohibits the vendors from ringing their bells and tooting horns on every week-day evening after 7 p. m., s. t.

Women Gardeners Hear Addresses at "Glen Grove"

a very meritorious idea, in some such centers instructive demonstrations for floral arrangements, etc., being given. The garden lovers were counselled not to do everything a garden club can do, but to do fewer things and do them well.

After a most pleasant social noon-hour in the glen and in the gardens of the Parry residence, the afternoon meeting was called, when Miss Anne Westner, instructress in floriculture at the Ambler School of Horticulture spoke.

Miss Westner informed how to arrange flowers, and gave numerous helpful hints throughout her demonstration. She showed how to cut blooms, using a knife so as not to crush the stalks, thus making a clean and oblique cut. For some shrubs, it is well to also split the stalks with the knife, permitting more water to be absorbed.

Proper treatment of blossoms for show purposes was gone over. For the majority of such it was suggested that they be plunged in deep cold water for about three hours before arranging. If some blooms require reviving before showing the hot-water treatment was advised, with the lower part of the stems being placed in hot water for about 15 minutes. Thus the air is drawn out and greater quantity of cold water permitted to be absorbed later.

King Gene Goes Forth

By BURNLEY

GENE SARAZEN steps out to do battle in the United States Open this year with all the ambition and zeal that a champion needs to defend his title against a field as classy as the one that confronts him; and, in addition to ambition, Sarazen has every bit of the equipment it takes to carry a champion through the gruelling test.

The unusually fine performances of many of the contenders, both oldtimers and newcomers, have caused some experts to discount Gene's chances of retaining the sparkling crown. They even say that Gene has no incentive to win—but here they appear to be far from the McCoy. There is plenty of incentive. Should Sarazen win the U. S. Open he will be on his way to eclipsing the Great Jones' grand slam. If he wins the British Open and the American Professional title the trick will be accomplished.

Therefore, Sarazen is certainly out to win. Let's see what he's got to win with. The things that count are swing, stamina and determination. Sarazen chalks up mighty close to 100 per cent in all three.

His swing is more compact than that of most of his opponents, which gives him plenty of control without loss of power. His work in tough spots has improved until he can manage shots from the rough or the sand in a manner that hardly any other golfer can equal.

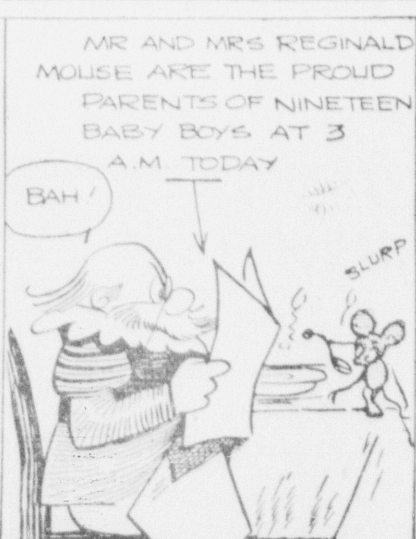

He has stamina and to spare. He trains hard and keeps in first rate condition. He is built broad and powerful, with unusually fine wrists and legs. And he can keep cool, nowadays. Bad shots don't upset him the way they used to, and he can ignore a restless or annoying gallery.

As to this quality of concentration—Sarazen's placid sureness in a match comes from his ability to keep his mind on the shot at hand and to make his decisions quickly. Nothing disturbs his close attention to each problem as it comes up.

Sarazen has a tough flock of contenders to beat, but he is in shape to give them a champion's fight.
